Elizabeth Seton High School
Bladensburg, Maryland

The Maryland State song was written by a Marylander who was living in the Confederacy during the War Between the States. The air is not original; the words reflect the bitter feeling that followed the passage of Union troops through Baltimore in 1861.

Maryland, My Maryland

The despot's heel is on thy shore,
Maryland, my Maryland.
His torch is at thy temple door,
Maryland, my Maryland.
Avenge the patriotic gore
That flecked the streets of Baltimore
And be the battle queen of yore
Maryland, my Maryland

Hark to an exiled son's appeal,
Maryland, my Maryland
My Mother State to thee I kneel
Maryland, my Maryland
For life and death, for woe and weal
Thy peerless chivalry reveal
And gird thy beauteous limbs with steel,
Maryland, my Maryland

Civic Life

Professional and Business Life

Social Life

Thou wilt not cower in the dust,
Maryland, my Maryland.
Thy gleaming sword shall never rust
Maryland, my Maryland.
Remember Carroll's sacred trust,
Remember Howard's war-like thrust
And all they slumb'ers with the dust
Maryland, my Maryland

Maryland . . . land of sanctuary and land of opportunity! We have chosen our State as the theme for our 1964 Caritas for many reasons. We could point to the network of good roads that encourage interstate commerce, to Friendship Airport which invites foreign visitors and trade; to the World Port of Baltimore, to central Maryland's industries; to southern Maryland's tranquil vacationland, to rich farm lands, sports centers, school and universities. But most of all we love Maryland for its rich history and heritage.

Maryland has chosen for its tree the White Oak. This is the Wye Oak located at Wye Mills on the Eastern Shore.

Future Life

Advertising

Prince George County is one of the fastest growing and most exciting areas in the State. Light industries and research centers have sought out sites here. Located at the door of the Nation's Capital, it has benefited by the Government's growing dependence on research and development. The 1962 census showed an increase in population in this county of 90.3 percent over the 1950 census figure. Few locations in our country possess the advantage of lying between consumer-conscious Washington and Baltimore markets and port.

History of Maryland

Named after Henrietta Maria, Queen of England, the tract of land that was to become Maryland was deeded by King Charles I to the first Lord Baltimore. The second Lord Baltimore, Cecil Calvert, used the grant to establish a colony in the new world and the charter settlers sailed from England on November 22, 1633 in The Ark and The Dove. They landed on St. Clement's Island at the mouth of the Potomac. Fifteen years later, a band of Puritans, seeking freedom of worship, founded Annapolis, the present Capital.

During the French and Indian War, Maryland defended the American frontier at Fort Cumberland where George Washington first commanded the colonial troops. Always a pioneer in America's search for freedom, this state declared her independence from Great Britain on July 3, 1776, one day before the rest of the nation broke relations with the mother country. The Maryland Line was Washington's bulwark during the Revolutionary War and after the Battle of Long Island, she took her nickname of the Old Line State from her strategic position.

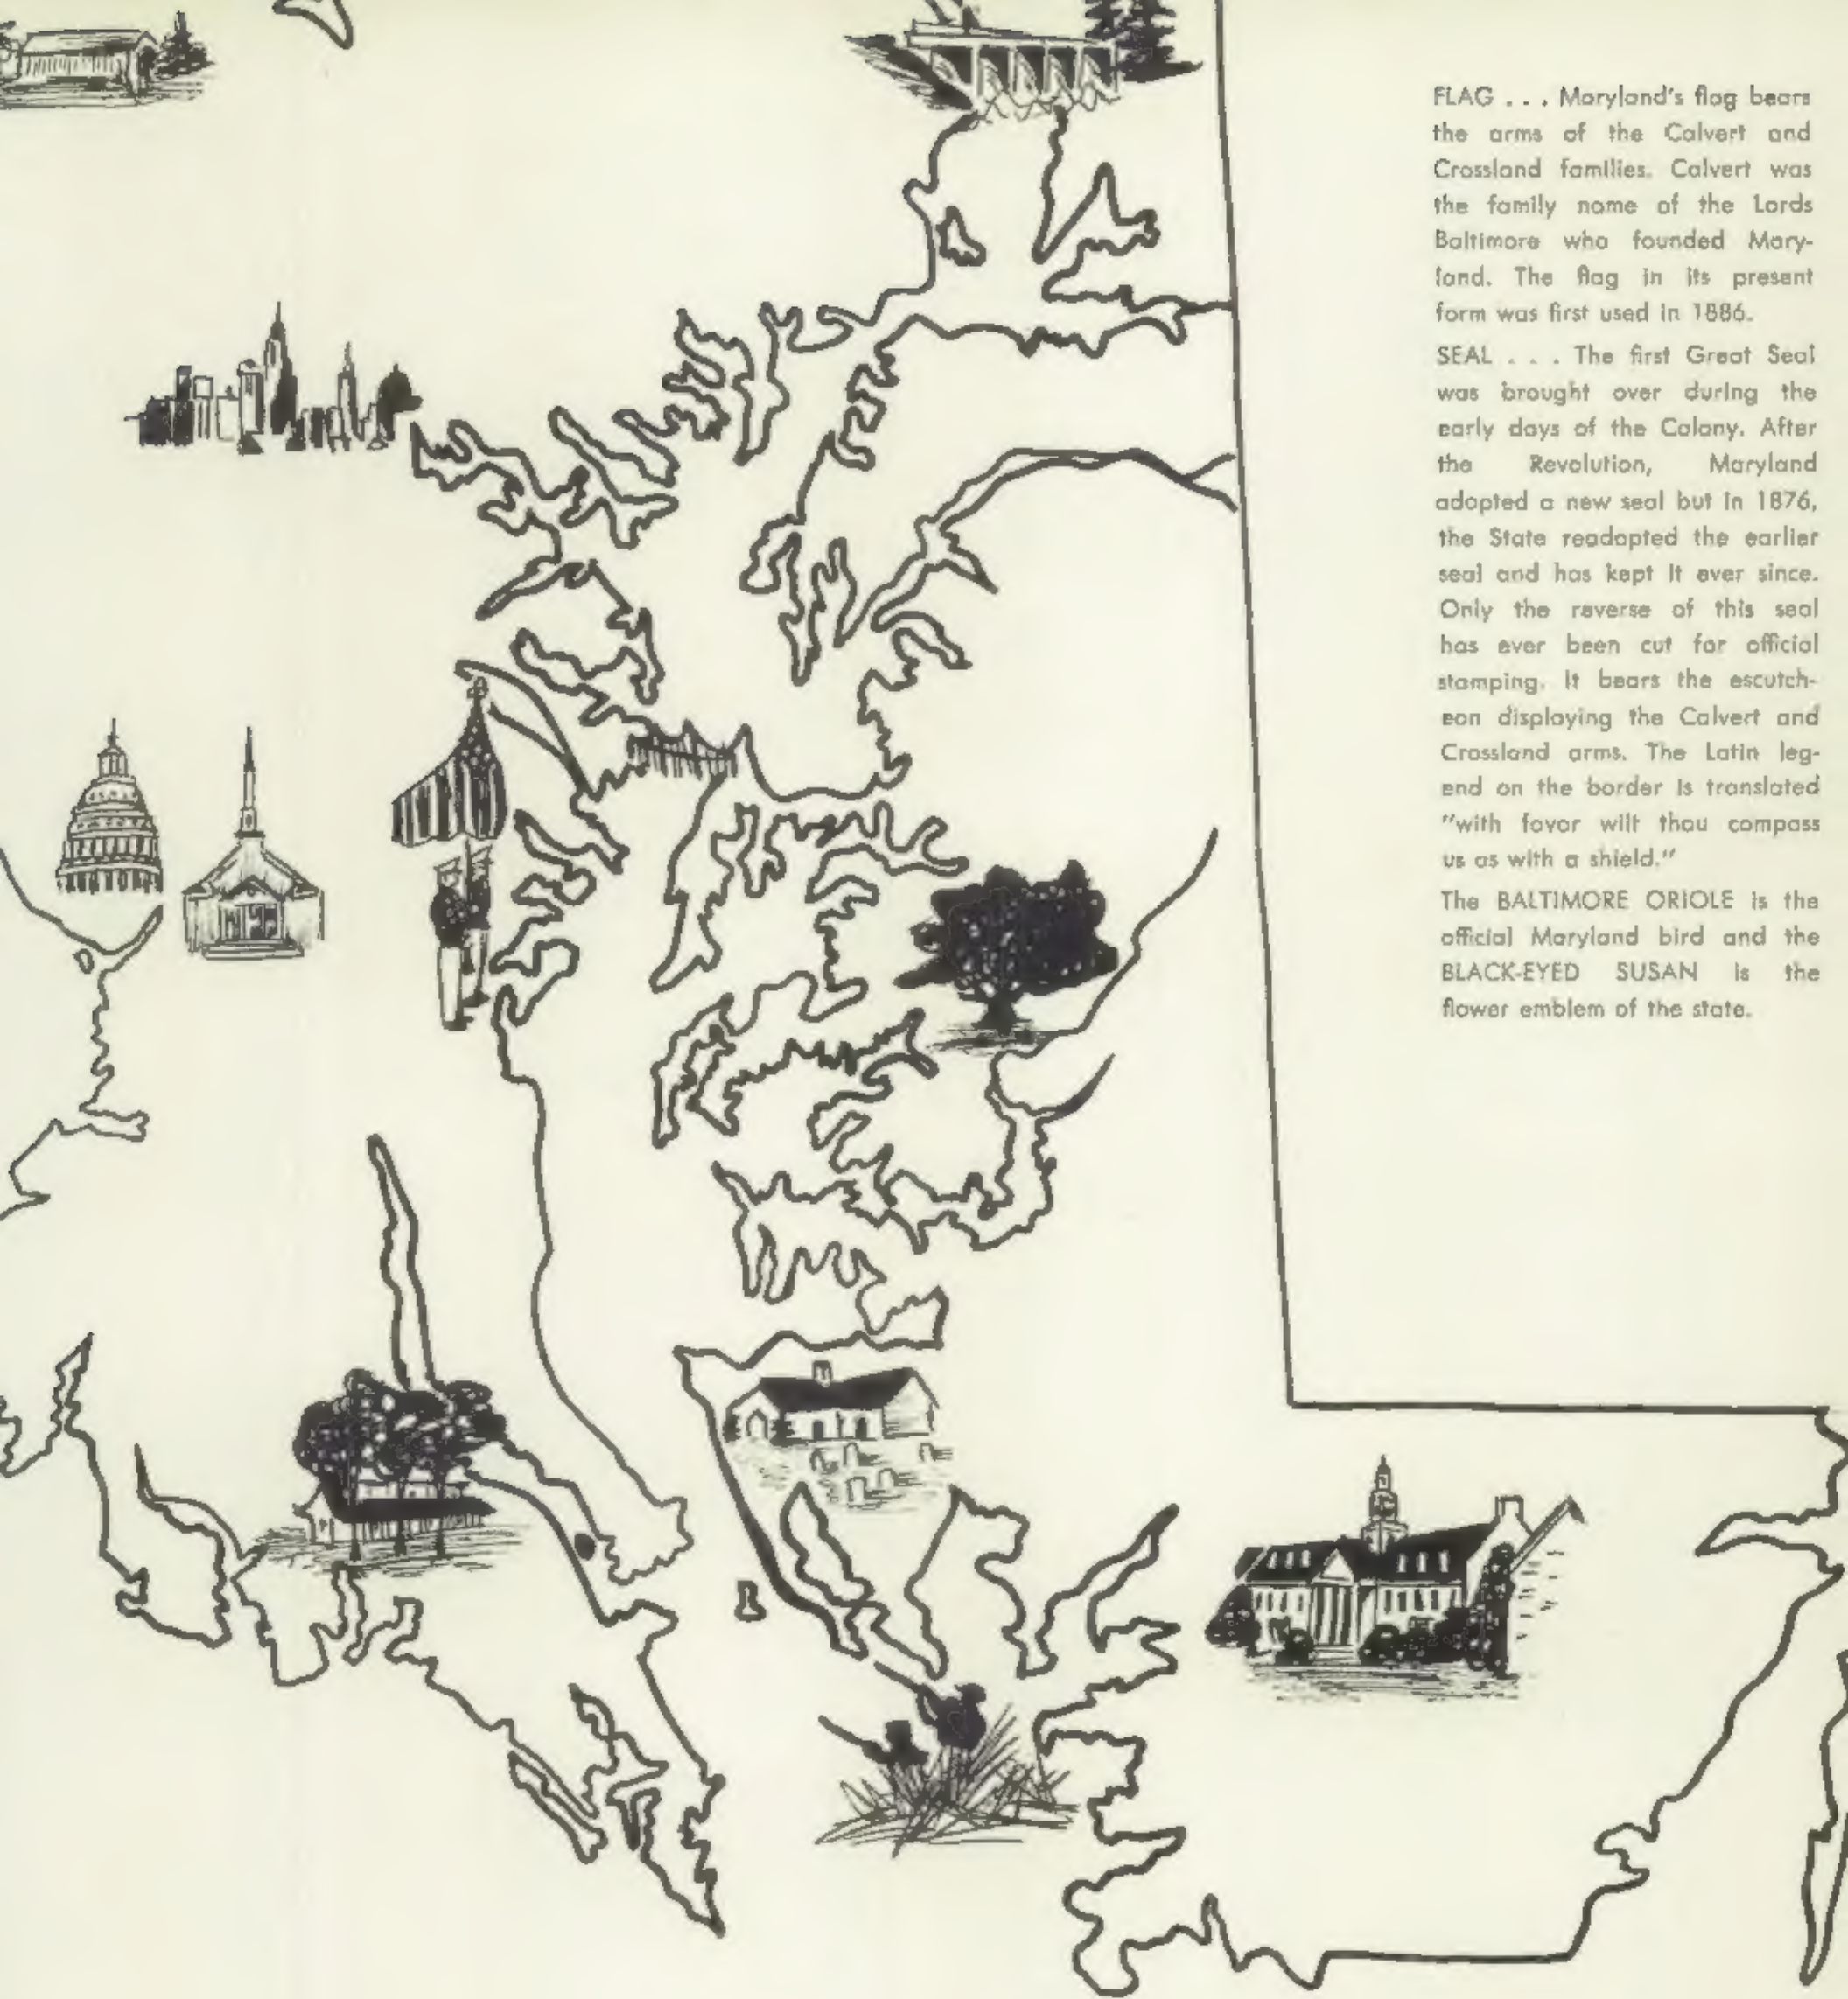

Until 1784, the Continental Congress met in the Maryland State House in Annapolis and it was in this same building that Congress ratified the definitive peace treaty with England. About a decade later, Maryland gave land to the Nation to establish the District of Columbia. Early in the 19th century, the Cathedral of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin, the first Catholic Cathedral in the United States, was built in Baltimore. The University of Maryland was chartered in 1807 and the Naval Academy in 1845.

The decisive battle of the War of 1812 was fought in Baltimore where the Maryland militia held back the land and sea forces of Great Britain. It was during this battle that Francis Scott Key composed "The Star Spangled Banner" at the bombardment of Fort McHenry.

The War between the States tore at the heartstrings of Marylanders with families divided in their allegiance. The bloodiest battle was fought at Antietam in Western Maryland in 1862. Emerging from the ravages of this war, Maryland began a steady economic progress. The wooden wharves that lined the harbor of Baltimore during the 19th century have given way to the steel piers that now frame the port of the sixth largest city in the United States. Baltimore's colonial skyline of brick and white clapboard has been transformed into a modern skyline of concrete, steel, and glass. The rolling hills of Central Maryland, which once belonged to farmers, are now major centers of space and scientific research.

But the spirit of the early colonists and civic leaders has remained the same. Dedicated to freedom, pledged to industrial advancement, interested in scientific research, Maryland still points the way to American greatness and to the fulfillment of the goals of the American way of life.

FLAG . . . Maryland's flag bears the arms of the Calvert and Crossland families. Calvert was the family name of the Lords Baltimore who founded Maryland. The flag in its present form was first used in 1886.

SEAL . . . The first Great Seal was brought over during the early days of the Colony. After the Revolution, Maryland adopted a new seal but in 1876, the State readopted the earlier seal and has kept it ever since. Only the reverse of this seal has ever been cut for official stamping. It bears the escutcheon displaying the Calvert and Crossland arms. The Latin legend on the border is translated "with favor wilt thou compass us as with a shield."

The BALTIMORE ORIOLE is the official Maryland bird and the BLACK-EYED SUSAN is the flower emblem of the state.

Maryland . . .

- Land of Patriots
- Cradle of Politics
- Center of Catholicity

ESHS recognizes the many opportunities offered by Maryland, especially in the area of politics and effective citizenship. Through history and English classes, students learn to express themselves and to participate in democratic procedures that will form the basis of future citizenship. Social service clubs help them realize the personal obligation of every citizen to help the less fortunate, and religion courses, through both lecture and application, train students to live their lives in conformity with their beliefs.

Barbara Rosen, Student Council President, receives from Sister Gertrude a gavel, symbolic of her office as head of the student body. Starting with a caucus of homeroom representatives, elections each year are similar to national elections.

The State House in Annapolis is rich in history. Here a visitor may view the Old Senate Chamber where George Washington resigned his commission in the Continental Army. The room is still as it was when the Continental Congress convened there in 1784, and a bronze plaque in the floor marks the spot where Washington is believed to have stood during one of his addresses. Both Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe once sat at the desks in the assembly room. The oldest official American flag in existence is displayed in the flag room. This banner was carried in the Revolutionary War and again in the War of 1812. The large wooden dome, the largest in the United States, dominates the colonial skyline of Annapolis.

Freshman English students find that humorous essays are easily dramatized. Norma Stone, Margaret Hooe, Eileen Dammann, Karen Hopkins, Maureen Wadden, Peggy Corcoran, Ellen Ulaszek, and Sharon Pohl enact "The Night the Ghost Got In."

Barbersingers Susan Evans, Linda Lazarus, Helen Marie Buteman, Janet Lawrence, and Frances Hinkston (STANDING) perform for their early American songs that form a unit in their freshman literature course.

Panels, debates and student lectures enliven junior English classes. Barbara Blome has captured the interest of Mary vandergrift, Thrynn Kirby and Paula Allegri with her views on the writings of Henry David Thoreau.

Students Try to Better Writing Skills

English is a core subject of skills. During the first half year, the emphasis is on the fundamentals of reading, grammar, and writing. The third semester is devoted to American literature, the fourth to English composition. One of the best ways to get better at writing is to practice it. The students of the senior high school have learned the following tips to help them write better papers.

The research paper is a long, detailed study of a topic. It is a good idea to choose a topic that interests you. The research paper is a good way to learn about a new topic. It is a good idea to choose a topic that interests you. The research paper is a good way to learn about a new topic. It is a good idea to choose a topic that interests you.

Student Council Sponsors Broad Activity Program

Student Council officers relax in the cafeteria after a morning of school activities; Mary Smith, treasurer; Dore Barlow, vice president; Barbara Roosen, president, and Susan Butler, secretary

As an integrating force in the school, the council works closely with school activities as well as regulations. Members keep traffic moving smoothly in corridors, preserve order in the auditorium, and sponsor activities which encourage school spirit. They conduct two week-long camps at ESHS during the year and participate in all the activities of the Prince George County Association.

This year the council initiated the use of the school library and dancing in the gymnasium. During the year they sponsored a Harvest Hop and a hootenanny. The council also elected officers for the following year. The annual yearbook was held at the Maryland University, which was a great success.

Barbara Roosen, Council president, leads morning prayers over the P.A. and makes announcements of school and club activities.

Elaine Martre, student council president, is ordering in the upper student lobby during change of classes. Walking toward the camera are Ann Fitzmaurice, Linda Rolles, Geraldine Wilson, Mildred Beal, and Anne Butler.

During a fifteen minute recess during the noon hour has become a favorite pastime this year. During this time, M. Hugh, Linda Leone, and Doris Yeller number the records and plan the program for each week.

Father Louis Kelly, S.D.S., explains the new liturgy to his sophomore religion class.

The Marian Retreat House in Baltimore welcomed senior retreatants in February. Sitting at her desk is Mary Ann Lawrence, devoting her leisure time to spiritual reading.

Religion Program Stresses Putting Faith into Action

Religion classes at ESHS operate on the premise that to be meaningful one's faith must be lived. With this in mind, credit has been withdrawn from these classes and the teachers use Catholic living in the modern world as the core of their courses.

Practical application of the knowledge gained in class is encouraged through weekly confession, frequent Communion, recitation of the rosary, participation in charitable activities sponsored by the Louise de Marillac and the Missions, and personal charity in their dealings with their teachers and classmates.

Students are invited to a day of recollection during each semester and the seniors make a three-day retreat at mid-term at the Marian Retreat House in Baltimore.

Father Duffy, guest speaker and faculty member, waits to help with the distribution of Holy Communion while Father Wilke, assisted by Mr. Ryan, celebrates the Mass in Room 100.

The quiet of the chapel at the Marian Retreat House forms a perfect setting for private meditation during the annual retreat.

Private interviews with the retreat master, Monsignor Colbert, form an important part of the retreat. Barbara Rosen is using this opportunity to seek counseling.

BELOW RIGHT: Ann Fyfe, Barbara Carey, Gail Callahan, Margaret Sullivan, and Mary Brahm place their hosts in the ciborium before Mass while Wendy Williams and Mary Ann Lawrence wait until the line passes so that they can place the ciborium on the altar.

CSMC Members Work Together to Further Goals of Missions

Each semester of the school year finds the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade conducting some unusual and interesting projects. Securing a scholarship to a Catholic High school for a Bolivian girl, running a raffle for the purchase of vestments for a poor mission, and playing post mistresses to deliver Christmas cards are only a few of their activities.

During the past year, ESHS's organization reached out into the community and sponsored a regional workshop for local units. Panels and talks centered around the theme "The Church at Work in the World." Four members competed in the annual diocesan oratorical contest, using as topic "I Speak for the Missions."

Mr. Dale Cool, guest speaker, listens as Virginia Carroll delivers her address at the CSMC oratorical contest. Elizabeth Reniak and Theresa Daly wait for their turn.

Sister Elna Franzen, O.P., presents the "Gifts of the Magi" which will be sold to raise money for the Christmas project.

Dorlene M. is picking the lucky ticket for the Bolivian raffle. Kathleen Finchman and Ella Blaha were her assistants in this project.

"Church at Work in the World" was the theme of the CSMC workshop at Seton in February. The De Matha boys and ESHS girls participated in this section. Liyan Nuss was chairman.

Father Austin Mohrbacher is celebrating a Mass in the Byzantine liturgy for six hundred students from the archdiocese who attended the CSMC workshop

Social Studies Prepare Students for Living

Seniors Mary King and Sharon Dade listen attentively as speaker Patricia McDonald and panel members Judith Arseneault, Mildred Benoit, Anne Bataillon, and Terry Whelan compare the educational systems of the United States and Russian American Communist states.

To prepare students to take their places after graduation in both the community and nation, courses at ESHS present democratic principles and apply these principles to the situations through mock conventions, caucuses, and elections. Students may take a course in history each year . . . civics, world history, American history, and American Government classes. American Government classes correlate their work as much as possible with the problems current in civic life.

Current events theme is that part of the day. Anne Foster, Christine Cloutier, and Mary Shryock await their turn.

Maryland . . .

- plentiful manufacturing sites
- ample and skilled labor supply
- low cost power and fuel

Strategically located for the busy markets of the East, South, and Mid-west, Maryland is one of the fast growing industrial states on the Atlantic coast with rich natural resources fertile farm lands

superior transportation facilities

For the research organization or lighter industry that prefers a small or medium size suburban locale . . . for the manufacturer who requires a small town location with a good labor supply for the heavy industry that needs port and rail facilities . . . in fact, for virtually every type of business and industry Maryland offers an abundance of profitable sites and advantages.

Barbara Roosen, president of ESHS student council, tries on the cap of the student council president of St. Agnes School of Nursing during a field trip of the Future Nurses Club

History was made on July 30, 1952, when Maryland's Eastern and Western Shores at least were linked by the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. Now industrial transportation has an unobstructed route from every point on the Eastern Shore to the Port of Baltimore as well as to cities to the north and west.

After years of discussion and planning, this largest all-over-water steel bridge in the world was opened to traffic. The structure measures 4.35 miles from shore to shore and 7 1/2 miles over water.

languages open wider the doors to the cultures of other nations. Three years of French are offered at ESHS and next September will inaugurate a similar course in Spanish. Two years of Latin afford academic students with electives designed to aid in the college preparation.

During class as well as before and after school students use the language lab to facilitate their use of the language in conversation and to enable them to increase their speed in French dictation.

BELOW: French III students find that extra time in the lab helps toward fluency in speaking the language. Getting some additional practice are Pamela Peck, Marjaret Russell and Margaret Baker.

Math Classes Open Doors

Basic courses as well as specialized work in math challenge students each year at ESHS. Freshmen struggle with elementary algebra; sophomores tackle geometry or general math; juniors slave at advanced algebra; and seniors fill reams of paper applying principles in advanced math. But intellectual satisfaction at reaching the correct solution of a difficult problem makes it all fun and worth the effort.

Latin Classes Master Classics

Latin students derived dual rewards from their course this year. Besides acquiring a knowledge of the language, they deepened their understanding of classical Roman life.

Latin I learned much about Greek and Roman mythology while the more advanced students delved into the history and politics of Rome and Athens.

Honor Club Welcomes 22

Character, scholarship, leadership, service . . . these are the qualities demanded for admittance into the National Honor Society. An average of ninety percent must be maintained during the freshman and sophomore years to make a student eligible for membership.

Although the ESHS chapter of this society is only two years old, it has already conferred membership on forty-seven juniors and seniors.

At the second annual induction ceremony of the National Honor Society, twenty-two new members were welcomed into the organization.

Vice-president Ann Chinn delivers the address at the ceremony. On the stage also are President Diane Bortoa and Treasurer Toni Bugel.

Senior Eileen McCarthy returns to her place after receiving her certificate of membership and the candle that is the symbol of "light to know." This symbol is taken from the school seal and . . .

Library Aids

There are many library duties other than checking and shelving. Here we see Ann Mulins, Mary King, Margaret R... and... Mary... working on their projects.

Student librarians perform an important role in ESHS daily life.

Membership in this club presupposes a desire to serve fellow students. Before and after school hours find ten or twelve members of the Library Council behind the desk charging out books, shelving returned books, preparing new books for circulation, or working at any of the many jobs required for the efficient working of a school library.

Councillors are responsible for the attractive bulletin board behind the display window and for conducting the annual book week contest.

Elizabeth Howard and Diane Barton check in periodicals while Nancy Mulins browses through an interesting looking magazine.

Help with Vital Library Routine

Lucile Benham and Mary Vanderfit sort index cards and check the daily circulation at desks.

RIGHT After work, youth at new box in card catalog must be brought up to date. Rose Brinker, Paula Allen, Linda Hansen, and Cecelia Brainerd bring new books ready for circulation.

Student Scientists Unite in Goa

Jo Ann Mullins, Geraldine Wilson, and Ann Chinn are showing class to determine the molecular layer of oil on a tray of water.

The twentieth century offers a thrilling challenge to anyone interested in science. The mysteries of space and the secrets held in the depths of the ocean are only two fields that are calling insistently for investigation.

Biology, chemistry, and physics students combine experimental work in the laboratory with field trips to local museums, hospitals, and government agencies. Chemistry students witnessed the application of some of the rules they earned in the classroom to defense purposes and physics students visited Pepco to widen their knowledge of communications.

of Investigating Laws of Nature

Future chemists, Nancy McManis, Felicia Gentry, and Nancy Rogers capture oxygen by the displacement of water.

Donna Wright, Virginia Kline, and Anna Peterson conduct the same experiment on grass given different grass.

Future Nurses Gain by Varied Projects

At the monthly meetings of this club, members either worked on projects or listened to speakers.

National Future Nurses Day was highlighted at ESHS by an all-day workshop at which nurses from the local nursing schools discussed careers with club members and with other interested students. Films on life in the hospital and field trips to the Washington and Baltimore hospitals rounded out the work of this club.

UPPER LEFT: Mary Brown and Doris Yetter, members of the Future Nurses Club, display the various caps from the local nursing schools, listening and asking questions of the representatives during the Hospital Week.

CENTER: Elizabeth Keeler, Mary Lou Graninger, Nancy Brosnan, Doris Yetter, and Jo Ann Gilmini publicize the work of their club through the weekly bulletin board.

At the fall meeting of the club, Lieutenant Commander Kenneth Durkin spoke of the advantages of becoming a member of the Navy Nurse Corps.

Future Teachers Conduct Classes

This club is another service organization that aids all students. Members help the faculty with routine checking of papers and recording of marks and enable students who are having difficulty with subjects or who have missed class instruction through illness to regain their places in class.

Members took over classes for a day and at the close of the second semester, entertained members of clubs from near-by high schools at a tea.

Christine Leer (seated at desk), a member of the Future Teachers Club, holds a discussion period with Linda Burton, Kathleen Boucher, and Ann McGowan.

The officers of the club gather for an informal chat: Kathleen Patterson, parliamentarian; Rose Boucher, president; Mary De Marzo, treasurer; Patricia Dulinsky, historian; Jean Keller, vice president; and Patricia Novicke, secretary.

Typing I classes use records for building up speed. Maureen O'Connell sets the tempo for the next speed drill.

Psychology, Health Round Personality of Grads and Frosh

Health students, Carrie Campbell, Mary McIntosh, Patricia Angeline, Rosemary Shapiro, and Ellen Jones present a class demonstration on the advantages of assuming good posture for good health.

Great Books Club Discuss Best Sellers

Composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, this group reads and discusses books ranging from Aristotle through Shakespeare to such modern writers as William Golding, E. E. Cummings, and J. D. Salinger. The writings are considered from the viewpoints of religion, history, society, morals, and deals.

Because of its popularity, this club will hold weekly meetings during the coming year and will be open to all students except freshmen.

UPPER: Martha Callaghan, Gail Callaghan, Judith Arseneault, Sarah Morrissey, and Terry Wagner use a club meeting to discuss the social implications of Aristotle's Politics.

'Caritas' Goes to Press After Many Hours

Patricia McDonald and Nancy Ryerse check proofs against originals to detect errors in printing

With this second issue of "Caritas," the yearbook will go out in favor of a memory book. This change will affect the publications of all the diocesan high schools.

The memory book to be published next year will retain the name, cover, and format of the present book but it will feature only senior portraits and activities.

The '63 "Caritas" won All Catholic from the National Catholic Press Association and First Place at the Columbia Press Convention.

Co-editor Linda Pappas answers the questions of Karen Cenlla who is writing page copy

Sharon Matsuk, Layout Editor Marie Baerino, and Thyrnn Kray plan layout for each section of the book

Members of Both Find Wide Demand

Beside the actual work of writing legends and copy staff members are called on for many other forms of work.

During the annual ad and patron drive, members keep accounts and post daily returns. Artists keep interest alive through posters.

Every yearbook is built on good pictures. Harris and Ewing take class pictures and some of the activities but many of the photos are the work of student photographers.

After planning the annual yearbook drive, Business Manager Sheila Via ett computes the daily assets to post in the student lobby.

Kathleen Plant, Nancy Rodgers, and Carole De Luca, members of the business staff, get copy ready for the advertising section and insert the ads.

Publication Staffs for Staff Talents

Office manager Gerry Wilson identifies pictures from the file which contains pictures and basic information about each girl at ESHS.

Photographer Beth Kozlicak (STANDING) and her assistant Gail Callaghan examine layout before taking pictures.

Assistant business manager Mary Wyman and assistant editor Martha Farrell collect figures for keeping the chart up to date during the yearbook drive.

Maryland . . .

Although Maryland is the tenth smallest state in the Union, it possesses a wide variety of recreational facilities. Twenty-nine state forests, parks and picnic areas are scattered throughout the state to enable families to enjoy low cost vacations. Maryland offers water fun to suit every taste whether a person enjoys bathing in the raging surf of the Atlantic or fishing along the placid inland rivers and lakes. Many good beaches dot the 6,000 mile shoreline of the Chesapeake Bay.

Maryland is a mecca for anglers. Trout, bass, rockfish and white marlin are only a few of the fish found in Maryland's waters. Hunters can find deer, quail, ducks and other game that abound on 158,000 acres of public hunting grounds. One of the nation's great racing states, Maryland is famed for the Preakness harness racing and other forms of this popular sport. Jousting, once the pastime of medieval knight, is now Maryland's state sport.

Through formal and informal days, ESHS graduates prepare to contribute into the community of their community.

Every river and inlet along the bay is crisscrossed with marinas where yachts and sailboats

Gym Classes Join Fun with Credits

Closely correlated with physical fitness, the physical fitness program at ESHS embraces both exercises and sports.

Held once a week, these classes are open to students in all four years. Classes are held in the gym during the winter months and feature folk dancing, volleyball, and basketball.

In spring, classes move to the athletic field for outdoor sports.

During the winter, volleyball is one of the most popular sports. Soon athletes are preparing for the intermural play-offs.

Softball never uses its upper, during gym periods, especially, if the day is warm and spring is in the air.

ABOVE: Visual aids help integrate the Home Economics program by covering such fields as budgeting, child care, meal preparation, and interior decorating.

in Modern Era

Judith Arseneault pins the hem line in Jane Brooks' dress while Eugenia Greenfield presses out a seam before stitching in her hem.

Within the framework of "Christian Family Living," this course goes beyond a mere course in dressmaking or food preparation. The syllabus touches such topics as interior decorating, art appreciation, budgeting of salaries, purchasing discrimination, and child psychology.

The course is open to juniors and seniors as an elective.

The skills of dress making, fashion design, and good grooming form an important part of instruction in home economics.

Hobbies Take Shape

Teresa Steppe, Nydia Webb, Dawn Coltrane, Mary Ellen Bobb, and Sharon Fikes create novel ceramic figurines during art class

Correlated with home economics, the art classes center around beautifying the home. The annual art exhibit features ceramic objects and mosaics, table decorations and seasonal novelties

Besides the art room with easel desks, the department has a fully equipped ceramics lab and corridor display boards to exhibit student work

UPPER LEFT Mary Ellen Fivens puts the finishing touches to the base of a lamp she is making. The work in the background was done by other art students

UPPER RIGHT Pottery projects undertaken by art classes are many and varied. This group is working on pottery for the annual art exhibit

During Art Sessions

Christine Kinney, Betty Crocker, and Joanne Paddock paint designs on their ceramic projects.

Advertising the annual Home Ec fashion show and exhibit by painting colorful balloons engaged the talents of Christine Leer, Joanne Bickner, J. Ann Morris, and Kathleen Steyer.

Designing mosaic compositions requires close concentration as Carolyn Wallis, Shirley Dade, Eugenia Greenfield, and Ann Garvey discovered when they traded their hand at this popular hobby.

Glee Club Seeks Talent in Annual Variety Show

Each fall, the glee club sponsors a variety show open to all students. Auditions select those who will participate in an assembly program and those who will be admitted to the glee club as members.

At open house held in March for prospective freshmen, the glee club presented a program of popular music.

Club Sponsors Series of Musical Assemblies

Opening their season with a program for the first P-TA meeting of the school year, the glee club entertained students, their parents, and guests at a Christmas musicale, at a St. Patrick's Day skit, and a spring concert.

The glee club is under the direction of Mr. James Gleran and is accompanied by Mrs. James Gleran. Both are new at ESHS this year.

Three Major Programs

Thespians Honor Bard in Shakespearean Skit

To prepare for the one-act play contest held at Gonzaga High School each fall, ESHS actresses prepared two one-act plays which were presented at an October assembly. Of the two presented, Chimney Corner was entered in the contest.

When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet was the final production of the year. This amusing skit in which the ladies give Juliette advice on how to attract and hold the man of her choice kept a record audience aughing heartily.

In The Tale of Chelm, the Fool (Terry Funder) offers some wise advice to the gossamer and his wife Margaret Sullivan, Terry Funder and Mary Helen Gallagher.

'Tale of Chelm' Offers One-Act Play Trilogy

One of the most interesting projects of the year was a trilogy of Jewish plays. A book-seller narrator linked the episodes and explained their meaning.

Overtones, a tense psychological play, was selected for the University of Maryland spring drama contest and festival.

When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet, a humorous melange of Shakespearean characters, closed the drama club's season.

Portia (Mary Hamilton) is warning Desdemona (Patricia Miller) against the dangers of falling in love with Ophelia (Margaret Hamilton).

Shakespeare's Ladies Meet

Overtones, a psychological drama, is the first production of the year, directed by Jean Renoir. It tells the story of a man and his wife, who are both blind, and their children.

Assembly Programs Feature Variety

Dressed in the traditional costume of Saigon, Louise Thai-Thi-Lang (Mrs. Louise de Bussy) entertained faculty and guests at a Sunday afternoon assembly. Mrs. De Bussy is both a concert pianist and a composer. Her program consisted of selections from the classics and from her many compositions.

Most Honored Mother Guillaume, Superioress of the Sisters of Charity, visited ESHS briefly on her tour of the United States. Lillian Nuss, chairman of the program in her honor, gave the address of welcome. Seated on the stage are Sister Mary Basil, Parisian Councilor of the Sisters of Charity; Most Honored Mother Guillaume; Sister Eleanor, Visitatrix of the Emmettburg Province, and Gisela Jurzka.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gileran presented a concert during assembly period in May. Mr. Gileran, a concert artist and baritone, presented a classical program with songs in several languages. His wife accompanied him at the piano.

Broaden Experience and Culture

Weekly Assemblies Offer School-Community Talent

Sponsored by the various clubs and classes, the assembly programs offered by ESHS touch on many fields . . . science, psychology, music, art, drama, careers.

NASA sponsored an interesting assembly on the fundamental principles of space research and their applications to aeronautical and space development

The United States Air Force Band, accompanied by their bagpipe group, presented a program during assembly. Captain Harry L. Meuser directed the band and Sergeant Melvin C. Ross, the pipers.

Gala Dances Give Students Social Whirl

Under a canopy of snowflakes, students dance merrily all evening during the festive dance—the annual Christmas dance—sponsored by the senior class.

Queen of Hearts Gloria Brantz takes the throne with her escort at the Valentine Dance planned by the CSMC. Patricia McIniffe, chairman of the dance, prepares to present the gifts to the queen.

Maile McMorrow and her date take advantage of the music of the Nones at the event hop Autumn in the Alps, sponsored by the Student Council as the opening mixer of the year

Basketball Teams Romp Through Season

Together with several other girls' high schools, ESHS hoopsters entered only the free-lance league this year. Varsity and Jay-vee teams faced Holy Names, Regina, La Reine, O'Connell, Holy Cross, and Seton in Baltimore. The varsity netted a no-win score while jayvees won two of their games.

ESHS fails to block the shot made by Holy Names at the first game of the season.

Mary Ann Hunt, Patricia Ax, Nancy Herrick and Ella Blaha take time out between games to enjoy a snack.

Patricia Blahnik, Carolyn Downing, Patricia Webb and Carolyn Blahnik are among the winners of the weekly games.

ESHS pinsters completed a season of sport and enjoyment with Patricia Downing as high set winner and Carolyn Ball with the highest average. The winning team included Ella Blaha, Mary Ellen Smith, Pat Ax, Mary Ann Hunt, and Nancy Herrick. Trophies were awarded the winners at the annual athletic party held in May.

Yearly Agenda to Promote Improvement of School

The P-TA at Elizabeth Seton serves a two-fold purpose . . . it forms a liaison between school and home for better understanding of each student and through its financial support, it enables the school to purchase needed equipment and supplies

Now in its fourth year, the P-TA has proved itself an efficient and effective organization at ESHS

Maryland . . .

Maryland offers an unlimited variety of opportunities to its young citizens. Before the class of '64 spread their futures like this rolling farmland of Western Maryland. Each graduate must seek inside herself and in the community about her to find the work best suited to her talents. She may consider such diverse fields as business, industry, nursing, teaching, or home making.

Whatever the graduates of '64 may choose to do, the State of Maryland offers her the opportunity she desires. Her state offers her a stable and prosperous economy, beautiful and salubrious surroundings in which to live, and the promise of a full and fruitful life in a youthful and enterprising community.

Members of the Caritas staff travel to New York to broaden their journalistic experience at the Columbia Press Convention.

This scenic panorama of Gambrill State Park in Frederick County of Western Maryland is typical of the countryside along the Blue Ridge Mountains. Beyond the confines of the cities, beyond the fringes of suburban areas, lie sweeping farmlands and pastures that give the traveler a sense of sweep and freedom.

Sixty-eight Students Make World Fair Pilgrimage

The week of May 15 was Mother Seton Week at the World's Fair. Three busses of Setonites traveled to New York and were present for the Mass at the United States Pavilion on Thursday of that week. A second Mass was offered on Saturday at the Singer Bowl.

During their three days at the fair, students toured the buildings with chaperones. Wednesday evening was devoted to sightseeing in New York and a visit to the Radio City Music Hall.

Upper Classmen Take Annual Trips to Local Parks

Riding along the woodland trails at Cacapon Park highlights the day's fun for Cheryl Harpin, Jane Brooks, Carol Clark, and Glenda Chewing Seniors and sophomores spent the day at Cacapon Park in West Virginia and juniors visited Lost River Park for their annual outing.

Cacapon Park is a state park nestled among the mountains of West Virginia. It provided swimming, boating, horseback riding, games, hiking, tennis, and dancing.

The cool water of the artificial lake attracted Darlene Morano, Mary Jo Lockman, Mary Meyers, Marie McMorrow, Josephine Daly, Patricia Benedetti, Barbara Criswell, and Mary Smithson

Becomes Traditional Part June Week Activities

Seniors and sophomores gather round the statue for a hymn preceding the crowning ceremony.

Enjoying their luncheon in the warm sunshine of an April day, the two sister classes start an afternoon of fun and entertainment. Seated at the first table are Barbara Oswald, Regina Zanelott, Sally Flynn, Mary Satterly, Mary McDonald and Brenda Ghelmin. The luncheon was followed by a program in the auditorium.

Junior-Senior Prom Provides Evening

Prom
Opens Week
of Final
Events

Juniors and seniors promenade in the auditorium at the midpoint of the evening. At the close of the promenade, favors were distributed by the junior class president.

One of the most popular conversation pieces at the evening was the wishing pond. Margaret Burke and Nancy Brosnahan encourage their dates to contribute pennies to charity by dropping them into the pond.

of Enjoyment

After the crowning, Queen Mary Ellen Malcolm remains seated for the "royal waltz" that is part of the ceremony. She is accompanied by Ann Fitzmaurice and both the dates.

Senior class president Mary Ellen O'Hara dances with her date as they pass along the receiving line in the formal ceremony.

Graduates Close Year with

Monsignor Corbett offered the Benediction Mass and addressed the graduates.

Graduate Mary King with her father and mother enjoyed the breakfast for the graduates and their parents after the Mass.

The rose ceremony followed the Benediction Mass. At that time, graduates presented a red rose as a symbol of the completed year.

Baccalaureate Mass and Diplomas

Seniors Use Hillbilly

Mary Ellen O'Hara, class president, and Alice Lee read the class will.

Kathleen McGowan (Ma) and Mary Ann Brady (Pa) sang a little sentimental number in the class night skit, "Mountain Music."

Lynne Nellis, Susan, and Gloria Baltaz, who told about their mountain romance in a duet in the background, are Rita Lappin, Mary Ann Petrin, Dawn Coltrane, Singing Bill, and Mary De Marzio.

Comedy for Class Night Program

Gisea Zurztza Wake and Dorothy Dint Jone turned out to be real composers of mountain music. They were accompanied by Rita Lappin and her mountain guitar.

Kathleen Critben Mase and Margaret Blake Day, explained their reason for being a doctor instead of a farmer.

Mountain Music gave a musical background to the class prophecy, as recited by Singing Bill and other members of the cast. The drawing of the prophecy was composed by Kathleen McGowan and Rita Lappin.
